50 scored off-market succession targets — Logistics (Sample)

SAMPLE — SYNTHETIC DATA, NOT REAL COMPANIES

Generated 2026-07-01 · United Kingdom · mandate model v2.2.0

This report is compiled exclusively from official public-register data (Companies House, UK). Processing relies on legitimate interest in prioritising business-development research. Scores are prioritisation aids, not predictions. Director ages appear only as bands, never as exact ages or dates of birth.

Methodology

A score indicates statistical similarity to typical pre-succession profiles. It is not a claim that any company or person intends to sell.

Owner age (up to 35 pts). Where the PSC register identifies an individual controlling owner, their age is used; otherwise the oldest active director stands in. Points ramp continuously from 55 to a maximum at 75+ — no cliff. Ages are computed conservatively from the birth month/year the register provides and reported solely as five-year bands. Age creates eligibility, never intent.

Control tenure (up to 10 pts). The longest-serving active director's tenure, ramping from 10 to 25 years. Decades of continuous control usually mean founder-generation ownership.

Control concentration (up to 10 pts). From the PSC register, scored as a confidence — the register reports control in bands, with corporate holders, trusts and protected records, so ownership is evidence with a rating, never a boolean.

No visible internal successor (10 pts). If no director under 45 has been appointed in the last five years, no next generation is visible on the register. A successor may exist off-register — a child not yet appointed, a management team, an employee-ownership route — so this signal is deliberately modest.

Urgency events (up to 35 pts). Behavioural changes in the filing record: board thinning (directors leaving without replacement), a recent registered-office or auditor change, a shortened accounting period, a company rename, or security being satisfied with none created. Age makes a company eligible; events make it timely.

Business attractiveness (0–100, shown per target). A balance-sheet bundle from the company's own filed accounts — net-asset level and 3-year trend, cash against creditors, average employees, asset base, filing hygiene — never a single proxy. UK small-company filings are filleted: the public record carries no income-statement figures of any kind, and none are shown or estimated anywhere in this report. Where no accounts data exists the axis reads 'no accounts data', not a low number.

Transaction simplicity (0–100, shown per target). Starts at 100 and subtracts for ownership layers, multiple controlling parties, charge churn and register status markers. Outstanding charges as such cost nothing — healthy firms carry bank security. Complexity dampens a target's priority; it never removes it: a complex transaction is often exactly why an owner needs an adviser.

Data confidence (0–100, shown per target). How much the register actually told us: owner age, ownership, filing history, charges, accounts. A company with no filed accounts data caps at 85 — missing data lowers confidence rather than producing a confidently wrong score.

Gate and priority. Companies are first passed through a qualification gate with few, true disqualifiers: a strike-off or insolvency marker, corporate/group ownership on the PSC register, or no active directors. Every company in this report has passed it. The headline number is PRIORITY: succession exposure multiplied by data confidence and contactability, dampened by transaction complexity. It is a research-prioritisation aid, not a prediction.
